Dolphins, sea turtles and oysters dying in the MS Sound

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

An endangered Kemp's Ridley sea turtle washed up on the beach in Waveland on Friday morning, the latest in a rash of lost marine life found along the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast in the past two weeks.

"This has been a really serious situation," Dr. Moby Solangi, executive director of the Institute for Marine Mammal Studies (IMMS) in Gulfport, said Friday. "We've had just in the month of April so far, 14 dead dolphins and 23 Kemp's Ridley sea turtles. It's kind of concerning and we're responding. We're working with Mississippi State University to determine what's going on."

The dead dolphins and turtles all seem to have suffered from skin and eye lesions that are consistent with freshwater damage, Solangi said.

He believes the biggest contributing factor to the problem is that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers opened the Bonnet Carre spillway in Louisiana in February in order to protect New Orleans and other

Ethics Commission says city clerk can sit in on discussions about Compton Engineering

The Waveland Board of Mayor and Aldermen on Wednesday spread on its minutes the findings from the Mississippi Ethics Commission regarding City Clerk Mickey Lagasse.

Prior to his February appointment, Lagasse was employed with Compton Engineering.

During his employment with Compton, Lagasse oversaw several open projects with the city.

The city sent correspondence to the Mississippi Ethics Commission asking, "Does any conflict exist with the city clerk being in conversations or involvement on open projects where he acted as an agent for Compton Engineering?" "If there is a conflict regarding these open projects, must the city clerk leave the room at any meetings or discus-

Prior to receipt of the ethics commission opinion, Lagasse left the boardroom during discussions about projects with

Rachel Dangermond speaks on history of the 100 Men Hall and Blues music at Hancock County Historical Society luncheon

BY JAMES KEATING MD
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The 100 Men Hall is a legendary African American landmark known for live entertainment and social life in Bay St. Louis. The new owner, Rachel Dangermond, was the featured speaker on Thursday at the Hancock County Historical Society's monthly luncheon at the Kate Lobrano House. Dangermond reported that the Hall was built in 1922 by the One Hundred Members Debating Benevolent Association, an organization founded by 12 civic-minded African American men. This association was incorporated in Bay St. Louis in 1894 "to assist its members when sick and bury its dead in a respectable manner and knit friendship." The 100 Men Hall attracted legendary Black musicians in the beginning of their careers and became known for "jump blues" on the "Chitlin Circuit," a collection of performance venues likened to a string of pearls necklace cast throughout the South that provided commercial and cultural acceptance for African American musicians, comedians, and other entertainers during the early and mid twentieth century.

Rachel Dangermond was born in Miami in 1959, after her family was forced to leave post-revolutionary Cuba. Her father was born in Havana and traveled to New Orleans as a doctor where he met her mother, a native of Washington Parish, Louisiana, at Charity Hospital where she was a nurse. Dangermond graduated from UNO in 1988 with a BA in English and a minor in history. She did master coursework in English literature at Mills College in Oakland, CA. Dangermond founded and led the leading Wall Street independent research firm, OTR Global, Inc. In 2005, she moved from San Francisco to New Orleans and in 2011, launched her own research firm, Greenlight Global Research. In 2009, she adopted her son, Constantin "Tin". In 2018, she purchased the 100 Men Hall. Her mission is three-fold. First, she wants to continue to present live music. Second, to gather diverse segments of our community together at the Hall. To this end, she has hosted events to bring awareness to the African American, Jewish, and LGBTQ experience. Third, she wants to use artistic expression to tell the story of the Hall, which she sees as a metaphor of the resilience and self reliance of the African American community in Hancock County.

In 2011, a historic marker designated by the Mississippi Blues Commission on the Mississippi Blues Trail was placed in front of the 100 Men Hall. Blues is a music genre that originated in the Deep South around 1870. The blues style is a cyclic musical form in which a repeating progression of chords mirrors the call and response scheme commonly found in African and African American music. Different from the Hill Country and Delta blues, the Hall featured Jump

NBE bids farewell to principal

BY PEDRO SOLIS
SEA COAST ECHO JUNIOR REPORTER

Next school year, North Bay Elementary Principal Jeremy Weir will be moving to North Bay Middle School as principal. He said he's been principal at North Bay for four years. "The superintendent thought that I would be a good fit there, because I have a lot of experience at the secondary level," Weir said.

Weir said he is sad about leaving North Bay, but is excited for a new adventure at the middle school.

He has been principal at North Bay for the past four years.

"I'm going to miss the awesome teachers here who have become my friends," he said. "But, most of all, I'm going to miss the students. My message to the students is to always do your best and every day is a great day to be a North Bay Tiger."

Fourth-grader Libby Benigno said that she is sad Weir is leaving because he does "fun stuff with us" and is "inspirational."

Fourth-grader Jamison Zimmermann said Weir taught him how to be a North Bay Tiger.

"I don't want him to leave because he's a fun principal and he likes making up jokes," Zimmermann said.

Senior Citizen health fair scheduled for May; organizers seeking vendors for event

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

The annual Senior Health and Information Fair is scheduled for May 15 at the Bay St. Louis Community Center.

The event is sponsored by the SALT Council, the Hancock County Sheriff's Office and the Hancock County Senior Center.

SALT Council chairman Jim Thriffley said the fair is one of many the organizations host for senior citizens throughout the year.

Other events include the senior prom, fish fries, and programs that help seniors understand their circumstances, Thriffley said.

The programs are made possible through grants obtained by the Hancock County Sheriff's Office, he added.

Each year, vendors attend the fair with informational booths.

"We are still in need of vendors for this year's fair," Hancock County Senior Citizen Director Arlene Johnson said.

In addition to informational booths, the fair will also feature giveaways and a free cookout for seniors.

The event is open to all senior citizens residing in Hancock County.

"It's to promote a higher and better quality of life for our seniors," Thriffley said. "The added benefits of the health fair promotes their well-being."

The Senior Health and Information Fair will be held at the Bay St. Louis Community Center, located at 301 Blaize Ave., from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on May 15.

Anyone interested in hosting an informational table can contact Candy Brister at 228-209-8729 or Johnson at 228-467-9292.

The Senior Center also offers daily classes in ceramics, crafts, quilting, and oil painting.

Seniors unable to drive to the center can participate in the center's transportation program. Drivers pick up seniors Monday through Friday in Bay St. Louis, and Waveland; Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in Pearlinton and areas north of I-10 such as Diamondhead, Catahoula, and Kiln.

Drivers also take seniors to run errands, shop for groceries, pay bills, and attend medical appointments. Seniors are also served breakfast and lunch at the center. The only criteria to participate is that people be at least 60 years old and live in Hancock County.

The Hancock County Senior Citizens Center is located at 601 Bookter St. in Bay St. Louis. For more information about programs, contact staff at 228-467-9292.

MDCPS recruiting caseworkers for child and family services

SEA COAST ECHO

Mississippi's child and family welfare agency wants to add dozens of soon-to-be graduates with degrees in human service-related fields to its growing team of child protection and family welfare specialists.

"This is the opportunity to make all the difference in the world to the children of Mississippi – and to their families," said MDCPS Commissioner Jess. H. Dickinson.

"These jobs that we're working to fill – they require hard work and long hours. But as everyone who does this work will tell you, there isn't anything more rewarding than to know you have changed a child's life for the better. For forever."

Thanks to additional funding appropriated by the 2019 Mississippi legislature, the agency hopes to hire more frontline caseworkers to expand and improve the quality of services provided to Mississippi's at-risk families and children, Dickinson said.

MDCPS is also recruiting experienced social work professionals to fill new supervisory positions needed to oversee the work of frontline caseworkers, adoption specialists and licensure staff.

In addition to social work majors, individuals with degrees in related human service fields such as education, sociology, counseling, child and family studies, marriage and family therapy, educational psychology and nursing may also qualify for the available jobs in frontline casework, adoption and foster home licensure.

Individuals interested in possible job opportunities are encouraged to visit the Mississippi State Personnel Board website at www.mspb.ms.gov to access current job postings and job descriptions. Appointments for preliminary interviews will also be available later this spring at all

National Park Week

National Park Week is a week in April annually proclaimed for the celebration and recognition of our national parks. This year, National Park Week will be April 20 through 28 and this year’s theme is “Did You Know...” The celebrations will be marked with special events and activities including Junior Ranger Day and Entrance Fee-Free Day on April 20, Earth Day on April 22 and Park RX Day on April 28. Our national parks are living examples of the best this Nation has to offer – our magnificent natural landscapes and our varied yet inter-related heritage.

Parks can provide outdoor opportunities, recreational experiences and places of quiet retreat.

America’s national parks have something for everyone. Take a break and experience something new, enjoy some fresh air, get some exercise, and see where history happened. And, since admission is free to all on Saturday, April 20th, National Park Week is a great time to get up, get out, and explore a park.

There are six national parks in Mississippi.

Brices Cross Roads National Battlefield Site is where Major General Nathan Bedford Forrest obtained a significant Confederate victory in 1864. However, its long-term effect on the war proved costly. This site is a perfect example of winning the battle, but losing the war.

Tupelo National Battlefield is where the battle of Tupelo was fought by more than 20,000 troops. Major General William Sherman successfully kept Major General Nathan Bedford Forrest away from the Federal supply line in Tennessee in June of 1864.

The Vicksburg National Military Park/Cemetery commemorates the campaign, siege and defense of Vicksburg.

Its surrender on July 4, 1863, gave the North control of the Mississippi River. The Vicksburg battlefield includes 1,330 monuments and markers, a 16-mile tour road, a restored Union gunboat and a National Cemetery.

The Natchez National Historical Park is located in Natchez. From the magnificent antebellum estate of John McMurran, to the downtown home of African-American barber and diarist William Johnson, to the French Fort Rosalie, this diverse Mississippi River town has lent itself to opportunity for hundreds of years.

The Gulf Islands National Seashore, which is open year-round, is located in Mississippi and Florida.

You will find that bayous, historic forts, island beaches, recreational opportunities and sparkling waters abound here. Gentle breezes, hurricanes and tides continually reestablish this charismatic scenery.

The Natchez Trace National Scenic Trail is one of my favorite national parks.

It stretches from Nashville to Natchez and encompasses numerous points of interest along the way, from bountiful wildlife, Indian mounds to other historical sites.

Remember, our national parks belong to everyone and visiting them can be a marvelous experience.

Wicker Warns Against Government Takeover of Health Care

Far-Left Ideas are Becoming Mainstream

Democrats’ central promise on health-care reform used to be, “If you like your health-care plan, you can keep it.” As many of us predicted during debates about Obamacare, that turned out not to be true. Millions of Americans lost their chosen health plans after the disastrous law took effect.

Ambitions on the political left have become more extreme since, with so-called “Medicare for All” emerging as the popular new idea. Senator Bernie Sanders introduced a proposal that has won the support of four other Democratic senators running for President and received praise from much of the field. A companion bill in the House now has 108 cosponsors, apparently abandoning the idea of protecting Americans who are satisfied with their current plans.

Today’s advocates are more upfront about the

From the Senate

by Roger Wicker
U.S. Senator

effects of these proposals than in the past, openly calling for 180 million Americans currently on private and employer-sponsored health insurance to lose their plans in a government takeover of the industry.

This would not just end the private insurance most Americans prefer – it would bankrupt Medicare and likely bankrupt us all. “Medicare for All” would really mean Medicare for none.

“MEDICARE FOR ALL” IS NOT WHAT IT SOUNDS LIKE

Medicare is a vital part of our nation’s health-insurance system. It provides certainty to millions of Americans over the age of 65, including almost 600,000 Mississippians. These seniors paid into this program when they worked and younger Americans are paying into the system today. Young people deserve assurances that a solvent Medicare will be there for them when they retire.

According to an independent study, Medicare for All would destroy this system. Research by the Mercatus Center shows that it would cost taxpayers $32 trillion over ten years and $170 trillion over 30 years, ballooning our nation’s debt.

Proponents of bad ideas often fall silent when asked how to pay for them. Our country has experienced historic economic gains, with impressive wage growth for low-skill workers, since Congress lowered tax rates almost a year and a half ago. A program like Medicare for All would require new and higher taxes on Americans at every income level, especially the poor and middle class. This would reverse the progress we have made, hurting families, businesses, and individuals and lowering our country’s prospects for growth.

ASSOCIATION HEALTH PLANS COULD COVER 400,000 PREVIOUSLY UNINSURED PEOPLE

Choice and competition, not government, made the American health-care system one of the best and most innovative in the world. But anyone who has paid for health insurance knows that prices are high and continue to climb. This is a serious problem worthy

Criminal Justice Reform

The legislature has just passed another bill designed to tackle Mississippi’s sky-high incarceration rate.

How high is it? England and France, which have about the same standard of living as Mississippi, have one-tenth the incarceration rate as our state. Indeed, Mississippi has one of the highest incarceration rates in the world.

Like a lot of Mississippians, my approach to crime has been simple – just lock them up. That’ll learn ‘em. But like a lot of things in life, it’s never really that simple.

For one thing, low pay for guards has created a broken prison system in which criminal gangs have infiltrated our prisons, running the contraband concession as a profit center.

Gangs operate both in and out of prison. To survive in prison, gang membership is a necessity. Prisons have become a breeding ground for more criminality. Rather than reducing crime, prisons are increasing crime.

Guest Column

by Wyatt Emmerich

So it’s crucial to break this cycle and keep young people capable of rehabilitation from falling into the gang trap. Once there, it’s almost impossible to escape.

We’re talking about a lot of souls. Twenty-nine thousand Mississippians are locked up in local, state and federal facilities. That’s a four-fold increase over the last 30 years.

So why does America, and Mississippi, lock up so many people compared to Europe and the rest of the world? Study after study has shown that America embraces a punitive approach while Europe embraces a rehabilitative approach. America spends $9 on incarceration for every one dollar on rehabilitation. In European countries, it’s just the opposite.

In Europe, prison sentences are shorter and the goal is to reintegrate the individual back into society as quickly as possible. In America, sentences are longer and reintegration is not considered a government function.

Our nation’s unique history is a factor: We had to conquer an indigenous people. Slavery was critical to the southern economy. Guns, whips and chains are part of our culture.

Unfortunately, our punitive approach has created a permanently disconnected underclass. That breeds crime.

Times change. Technology and better communication can be an engine of progress. Public policy research is more readily available. Bad policy is more quickly exposed. Movers and shakers are better equipped to move forward. Voters follow their lead. That’s what’s happening.

Reform

and a dozen or more super rich finance and tech titans. FWD.us has feet on the ground in Mississippi. Staffers are actively working with state legislators to make reform a reality.

It’s an amazing coalition of both the left and the right, national and local. Not only is the ACLU and the Southern Poverty Law Center on board, but also the conservative Koch brothers’ Americans For Prosperity, Mississippi’s Center for Public Policy, Empower Mississippi and Clergy for Prison Reform.

Then there are individual crusaders like Christina Dent. Check out her podcasts. Her new nonprofit End It For Good deserves support. She is one of the most thoughtful and persuasive speakers I have ever heard.

without parole for technical parole violations and drug addiction. Finally, so many average Mississippians were affected through friends and extended family that opinion changed.

As a columnist, I keep hearing horror stories. Last week a distraught mother, Lisa Moore, came to the Sun. Her 19-year-old ADHD son was sentenced to 50 years for breaking into cars. He will serve a minimum of 12 years before he gets parole. That’s nuts.

One lady was sentenced to five years without parole for one pill box of opioids. Three thousand Mississippians are in jail for technical violations such as not showing up for hearings, driving with suspended licenses, not paying fines and failing drug tests. So it goes.

Mentally ill and addicts are sent to prison instead of treatment, making their already challenging conditions infinitely worse.

other think tank experts and the conferees are aware of the touch points. For example, people who are in minor trouble with the law are not very organized. Yet the legal system requires them to jump through all sorts of hoops under the threat of imprisonment. Reducing these hoops will lower the incarceration rate. Our current system is designed for failure and imprisonment. We need a reality-based system that gets people in crisis back on track, not stuck in jail.

One example is suspending drivers licenses for minor drug possession and failure to pay fines. You can’t function in Mississippi without a car, so people drive anyway, get caught and go to jail, setting them down a vicious spiral alienation, resentment and destruction.

Make no mistake: Law abiding citizens need to be protected from truly violent, incorrigible criminals. But our incarceration of the non-violent depletes our resources to fight those genuine threats to public safety.

FWD.us targeted four states for reform: Mississippi, Arizona and Oklahoma for its high rate of incarceration and New York for its sheer number of prisoners.

The first step was political: FWD.us commissioned a comprehensive poll revealing widespread discontent with our criminal justice system. Eighty percent of Mississippi believe it is important to “reduce the number of people who are in jail or prison.” By a two to one margin, Mississippians believe incarceration increases crime.

The poll was necessary to battle the knee jerk lock ‘em up reaction of the typical state legislator. For decades, no legislator wanted to be seen as soft on crime. Penalties were heaped on penalties. Non-violent offenders began serving huge sentences

In the early 1990s, I was co-chairman of the Metro Jackson Crime Commission with Wirt Yerger. The crack epidemic was raging, the crime rate was skyrocketing and we cried out for more incarceration and got it. I was co-chairman of Gov. Kirk Fordice’s commission for criminal justice reform. We passed sweeping new laws bolstering victims rights. My anti-crime credentials are impeccable.

But over the years I have learned that it is much more complicated. Research is finding better solutions.

It is beyond the scope of this column to write about all the details of how House Bill 1352 addresses reform. It’s a lengthy bill. As voters, we should encourage our representatives to keep moving forward.

The FWD.us gurus,

This is not a new story. God gave Moses a lot of laws but we couldn’t help but break them. The wages of sin was death. It got so bad God was about to wipe away humankind.

God came up with a new plan. Christ came to earth, ushering in a new covenant based on grace, faith, forgiveness and redemption. Only then did mankind begin its slow climb out of barbarity.

For a state that overwhelmingly professes Jesus as our King, we sure have an Old Testament criminal justice system. It didn’t work very well for God. It’s not working very well for Mississippi.

“Working with MDCPS can be very rewarding and is an excellent opportunity for individuals interested in human services/social work to connect to the children and families in Mississippi,” said Kris Jones, Deputy Commissioner of The Mississippi Administration. Department of Child Protection Services now has less than 5,000 infants, children and youth in state foster care – roughly 20% less children than the highest count recorded in early 2017.

Dickinson said front-line caseworkers are staff most directly involved in the protection of at-risk children and in working with families to address their needs and issues which, if left unaddressed, could result in danger or harm to children.

“This is one of the most important jobs anyone could ever hope to do,” he added. “It takes a special kind of person to do this work well – and that is exactly who we want to hire.”

of Congressional consideration. Unrealistic, destructive proposals only serve as distractions.

President Trump issued a new rule last summer that has allowed small businesses, farmers, restaurant owners, and the self-employed to join together to purchase health insurance, including plans across state lines. This rule gives smaller employers the power to negotiate lower prices similar to larger companies. I am encouraged that 30 of these Association Health Plans (AHPs) have formed under the new rule already. According to the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, 4 million people are expected to enroll in AHPs by 2023, 400,000 of whom would otherwise be uninsured. I cosponsored legislation in mid-April to protect these plans so that more Americans can benefit from them.

There is a path forward to improve our health-care system and keep our promises to Americans. Health-care reformers should preserve what works and fix what does not.

Health Officials Investigate Measles Exposure in Mississippi

SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) is investigating measles exposure in Mississippi from an out-of-state traveler. The exposure happened at various locations from April 9-11.

"We are conducting a thorough investigation of the contacts we know this individual made during that timeframe. Measles is extremely contagious, with a 90 percent chance of infection from exposure if you are not protected," said MSDH State Health Officer Dr. Thomas Dobbs. "So far we have not identified any cases in Mississippi."

If you were at any of the locations during the specified dates and times listed below, you could be potentially exposed to measles. Please make sure you and your family are up-to-date on vaccinations, monitor for symptoms, and if symptoms do appear, call your physician or local emergency room BEFORE going to make sure the facility can make proper arrangements to avoid further spread of the illness.

10-11 p.m.
Wednesday, April 10
"The good news is that most Mississippians are protected against measles because of our strong immunization laws for school entry," said Dr. Dobbs. "If you received both doses of the MMR series of vaccinations as a child, you are protected."

Measles is a serious respiratory disease of the lungs and breathing tubes that starts with a high fever, followed soon after by a cough, runny nose, and red eyes. On the third to seventh day of illness, a rash of tiny, red spots breaks out. The rash starts at the head and spreads to the rest of the body. Symptoms usually appear about 11 days after exposure with a range of seven to 21 days.

Measles spreads when a person infected with the measles virus breathes, coughs or sneezes. It is very contagious. Measles can be serious. Young children are at higher risk for complications, especially those under 12 months old who are too young to receive the measles vaccination.

Ethics

Compton Engineering.

According to ethics advisory opinion no. 19-013-E dated April 5, 2019, Lagasse can be involved in discussions about ongoing contracts with Compton.

"The firm is not a business with which the city clerk is associated, and the city clerk will not have a material financial interest in the firm," the opinion states. "Therefore, no violation of Section 25-4-105(1) or (3)(a), Miss. Code of 1972, should occur."

Section 25-4-105(1) states, "a city employee may not use his or her official position to obtain, or attempt to obtain, a monetary benefit for any business with which he or she is associated. Additionally, a city employee may not have a "material financial interest in any business which is a contractor, subcontractor, or vendor to the city."

The opinion states that the "city clerk may be fully involved in current and future projects with the firm and need not recuse from those projects."

In other action:
The board recognized Jeanne Conrad in the building and zoning department as March's Employee of the Month.

The board also recognized the following volunteers for their help during the St. Patrick's Day Clean-Up: Kadence Kearley, Kayleigh Kearley, Kelbie Pitre, Kelton Oliver, Ethan Mauffray, Haleigh Dobson, Leah Dobson, Emma Dobson, Jackson Dobson, and Madison Dobson.

The board approved a motion authorizing the city's purchasing clerk to seek quotes for the installment of television monitors in the boardroom. Aldermen Shane LaFontaine said that it would be beneficial so that the public can view the same documents the board does during meetings.

The board also asked Lagasse to explore the possibility of having the meetings streamed online.

The board approved a motion to award the lowest and best quote from Morreale Construction in the amount of $2,850 for the demolition of 410 Wainwright.

The ribbon cutting for the Waveland Lighthouse is scheduled for April 26 at 5:30 p.m.

After executive session, the board approved a motion to file an appeal of the Feb. 27 2019 determination by FEMA concerning PW 4916 and 4917 and also authorize the filing of declaratory action against FEMA.

Yarborough said the PWs are from sewer south projects from Hurricane Katrina that were closed out and completed by Hemphill Construction in Sept. 2007.

"There's a disallowance concerning 800 or so bladder tanks," he said. "There's a FEMA disallowance. A 2014 internal audit found that there may have been overcharges by the contractor. The city of Waveland self-reported. FEMA disallowed approximately $1.4 million and the city is appealing that," Yarborough said.

The next meeting is scheduled for May 7 at 6:30 p.m.

communities from flooding on the Mississippi River. That water ends up in the Mississippi Sound.

"A very significant amount -- trillions and trillions of gallons of fresh water over a long period of time -- has been introduced to the Mississippi Sound ...," Solangi said. "When a huge amount of fresh water comes in like that, it significantly alters the habitat."

"In addition, if you put this huge slug of freshwater and silt and mud and clay and all that effluent that's up in the Mississippi River -- and fertilizer and all of that -- that's not where the water from the Mississippi Sound normally comes from. The Mississippi River drains these effluents. It's not only fresh water, it's all these other components. You're now introducing that water into a body of water that's not used to it."

In 2011, severe flooding prompted the state of Louisiana to open levees at several key points along the Mississippi river, flooding the Sound with fresh water and once again destroying the oyster harvest.

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources played a key role in managing the crisis and helping the oyster population return, through monitoring water quality and assessing and re-establishing oyster habitats. In the current crisis, DMR is performing continuous sampling of water and sea life to help assess the damage.

"We need to be looking deep into" ways to fix the continuing problems, Solangi said. "The spillways were created in the early 1900s. We need to rethink our strategies. For example, we don't have to release (all that water from the spillway) at once."

"In 2011, we lost the oyster production and the blue crab industry," Solangi said. "We're going to see the same type of results this time. ... It's the whole habitat, the ecosystem is being affected. And that's our livelihood."

To report dead or stranded marine life, call the IMMS at 888-767-3657.

Aleman inks with Catholic University

SSC senior offensive lineman Ronald Aleman, seated second from left, signs his National Letter of Intent with Catholic University of America on Wednesday, April 17. Joining him at the signing are his parents, Jose Perez and Brandi Aleman-Perez, his brother, Tony, SSC athletic director Stace McRaney, SSC offensive line coach Jeff Jordan and SSC head football coach Nate Encrpera.

Saint Stanislaus College senior offensive lineman Ronald Aleman signed a National Letter of Intent with Catholic University of America on Wednesday, April 17.

Aleman is a four-year letter winner on the offensive line for the Rock-a-chaws. He has started the last two seasons at center. Catholic University is located in Washington, DC.

Aleman commented, "This signing means everything to me. Not too long ago, I thought I had played my last down of football. However, after being cleared 100% to play by my doctors, I have been blessed with this opportunity to continue to play this game at a great school like Catholic University. Knowing I will be able to play four more years is simply a blessing."

Late during his senior season in 2018, Aleman was informed that he had an issue with one of his kidneys. Once the issue with the kidney was settled, he was cleared for a return to full activity which brought about the offer to continue to play the game of football.

Aleman has helped lead the Rocks to four consecutive playoff berths including an appearance in the 2015 state championship game.

He earned All-Division

8-4A honors this past season.

SSC head coach Nate Encrpera stated, "We are extremely proud of Ronnie and very happy that he will have this opportunity to continue to play and represent himself and his community at Catholic University. This is a really good fit for him. Over the past few years, he has made the calls for us on the line. He will mesh well with the blue collar work ethic of Catholic University. We look forward to watching Ronnie play in the future and wish him the very best in the future."

Aleman was also a member of the student ministry team, Mu Alpha Theta, National Honor Society, Environmental Club, powerlifting team, and track and field team during his time at SSC.

He has qualified to play as a freshman.

Aleman added, "I am most thankful to the SSC faculty and staff for guiding me and getting me ready to take this next step. The coaching staff has gone out of their way to prepare for this step up and I cannot wait. My decision to attend SSC was the best decision I have made. It has allowed me to develop my full potential and create many lasting relationships and friendships along the way. I am saddened to be leaving but excited about what lays ahead."

Aleman is expected to continue playing on the interior offensive line and will report to camp August 13. In 2018, the Cardinals posted a record of 1-9.

The Catholic University Cardinals are a Division III school and play in the New England Women's and Men's Athletic Conference (NEWMAC) with Babson

College, Clark University, Emerson College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Springfield College, the United States Coast Guard Academy, Wheaton College and Worcester Polytechnic Institute along with football affiliate members Norwich University, the United States Merchant Marine Academy and Maine Maritime Academy.

Former SSC mentor Jay Ladner named USM basketball coach

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

There are dream jobs out there for everyone and many people land their dream jobs every day. On Thursday, former St. Stanislaus head basketball coach, was given his dream job when the University of Southern Mississippi named him as the new head men's basketball coach.

Ladner, who played for USM, coached the Rock-a-chaws for 20 seasons before taking steps up the ladder toward this dream announcement.

During his press conference at USM on Thursday Ladner commented, "My love for this school goes without saying. To have an opportunity to come back here and be a part of it and coach basketball here, that is the greatest thing in the world. This is a destination job for Jay Ladner, where as other people may not see it that way. I love the place, I know what it is about and I look forward to getting it back in its rightful place in the hierarchy of basketball."

Ladner, a native of Picayune, grew up playing basketball in the Hattiesburg area graduating from Oak Grove High School. He later played for USM under the school's all-time winningest coach in M.K. Turk and was a guard on the Golden Eagles' 1987 NIT championship team.

After he graduated from USM in 1988, he worked briefly for Merck Pharmaceuticals before embarking on a coaching career that has simply become legendary in Mississippi and beyond.

Ladner took over a SSC basketball team in 1991 that had not been to the state tournament since 1945.

Ladner followed a process and motto that can be described as "God, Family, School" and built a foundation of success for SSC.

He went on to amass a record of 511-189 in 21 seasons of high school basketball in Mississippi which included 20 seasons at SSC and one season at Oak Grove High School.

At SSC, he brought the Rocks to 10 state tournaments and claimed the 2011 Class 4A state championship.

After his one season at Oak Grove, he took over the Jones County Junior College Bobcats. In his first season at JCJC, he went 17-8 before he brought national acclaim to the Mississippi ranks. In 2014 with just one full season of recruiting, he went 28-5 and won the NJCCA national title. The win mark set a record for wins in a season while also becoming the lowest seeded team in NJCCA history to win the national championship. That title remains the only national title in Mississippi JUCO history.

Art and science comes together in a new multi-media exhibit Living Light which incorporates science through the use of creative and innovative techniques. Artist and Scientist Dr. Hunter Cole will present her innovative techniques and methodology in this multi-media installation. According to Cole, "Art and science have always been mutually inclusive for me. Science serves as a vehicle for expressing my creativity and artistry. Art serves as a motivation to interpret our living world." In 2003 Cole began incorporating the use of photography with drawing to capture images created by bioluminescent bacteria—bacteria which produces its own light. Art incorporates science through the use of creative in innovative techniques and methodology. Cole reinterprets science and art. Hunter Cole is internationally recognized for her work that is inspired by science but lives as art. Cole, who holds a PhD in genetics, is a lecturer at Loyola University New Orleans. Cole has created several series of art using bioluminescent bacteria that will be exhibited as Living Light at the opening reception of her work at Waveland's Ground Zero Museum on April 24, 2019 from 5-7:00. The body of work will hang at Waveland's City Hall from April 26, 2019- June 3, 2019. Why I wash my own boat

We had a big 5 boat trip recently. The winds and seas kept all of our boats in close. Despite the dirty water, All 5 boats had great catches. The crews were having a little friendly wager between the boats. Captain Kenny's boat took home money for biggest trout, sheepshead, and black drum. In the last 10 minutes of the trip, my boat got the biggest redfish. Back at The Boathouse, we were blaring music and cleaning our boats. I was flushing my motor and cleaning my boat when I saw the monofilament line coming out of my propeller. Had I not been cleaning the boat, I probably would not have seen what could've been a disastrous issue. A pulled cotter pin, and quick turn on the prop wrench was all it took. The fishing line was removed, stopping it from doing any damage to the lower unit. Those that know me, know that I'm NOT a neat freak. I don't detail my boat, because it gets used and abused daily. I do however insist on cleaning my boat, at the end of every trip. This good "once over" is as much to clean it, as it is to inspect it. I cannot tell you how many minor issues I've found cleaning the boat, that overlooked would've turned into catastrophic disasters. A thorough rinse and scrubbing not only gets the blood, guts, and slime off the boat. That top to bottom inspection is a crucial part of keeping your boat working smoothly. I know everyone is tired at the end of a long day on the water. I strongly recommend YOU (the boat owner), finishing your day with a hose, brush and bucket of suds. Make note of necessary issues, and get em fixed ASAP. If someone wants to help, let them clean the fish or pump the gas... As always, have fun and be safe.

Ladner

Just three weeks after winning the national title, he was named the head coach at Southeastern Louisiana University where he has been the last five seasons. He has improved the win total each year at SELA and currently sports a 76-88 overall record in Division I. At SELA, he led the Lions to the 2018 Southland Conference regular season championship with a 22-12 record and a berth in the NIT. Ladner and his family enjoy a long history with USM that extends before Jay playing there.

His father, J. Larry Ladner, joined the country's first Department of Coaching and Sports Administration at USM in 1971 after a spectacular 11-year coaching career at Picayune Memorial High School. He retired from USM after a 20-year teaching career at on the Hattiesburg campus. Jay Ladner's announcement as the new head basketball coach was made on his father's 82nd birthday. No doubt, it will be the most memorable birthday present the elder Ladner has ever been given. Ladner takes over a USM squad that finished the 2018-19 season with a 20-13 record and trip to the Roman College Basketball Invitational. The Golden Eagles lost the first round game 90-68 to the Longwood Lancers.

The Hunt for after Easter Egg Recipes

BY LINDA BIGLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

After boiling, dying, and decoration countless eggs for Easter, we are now wondering what creations can be made from all of these hard-boiled treasures. This is indeed a dilemma because we no longer know where the much maligned egg stands in regards to our health. When we were young, we were told that eggs were good for us, then after much research, we were advised to avoid them like the plague; only to have the eggs declared good for one's health several years later. Fast forward to the present and eggs are once again one of the foods which should be avoided. Eat the egg, do not eat the egg; I could not care less, something is eventually going to be the cause our demise. For those brave souls who want to throw caution to the wind, I have a few recipes for those numerous after Easter hard cooked eggs. Just be sure not to ingest the ones that have been under the couch for a few days.

The first recipe is for an egg salad fancy enough to serve to company. It helps to have a food processor.

MOLDED EGG SALAD

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- One fourth cup cold water
- 12 hard cooked eggs
- 2 stalks celery, roughly chopped
- 1 green pepper, roughly chopped
- 2 tablespoons grated onions
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Three fourth cup hot water
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon Tabasco
- Soften gelatin in cold water for about ten minutes
- Place solid ingredients in a food processor and process until well chopped
- Add hot water to mayonnaise and stir until blended. Pour mayonnaise and remaining ingredients into processor and process until well combined.

Pour into 6 cup mold and chill until firm.

Garnish:
1 cup sour cream
Zest of one lemon
1 small jar black caviar, rinsed and drained well

Unmold egg salad, frost with sour cream and garnish with lemon zest and caviar.

Serve as a spread with crackers

Next is a twist on deviled eggs. If you have never tried goat cheese, this is a good place to start. It is quick and easy to prepare.

STUFFED EGGS WITH GOAT CHEESE AND DILL

- 8 large hard-boiled eggs
- 3 ounces mild goat cheese at room temperature
- 3 tablespoons milk
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- One half teaspoon Tabasco

A pinch of salt
2 teaspoons dried dill weed

Cut eggs in half lengthwise and remove the yolks. Set the whites aside. Place the yolks along with the remaining ingredients in a small bowl and mix with an electric mixer until smooth. Check for seasoning, adding more salt if needed. Spoon mixture into the egg whites, or if you want to be fancy; place in a pastry bag and pipe into egg whites.

Makes 16

This next recipe is for an egg salad with one or two ingredients not usually found in the typical egg salad

CURRIED EGG SALAD

- One half cup mayonnaise
- 1 and one half tablespoon freshly squeezed lime juice
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- One fourth teaspoon salt

One fourth teaspoon cayenne pepper
8 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
1 Granny Smith apple cored and diced
1 shallot, peeled and finely chopped
One fourth cup chopped fresh flat leaf parsley

In a medium bowl combine the mayonnaise, lime juice, curry powder, mustard, salt, and cayenne. Fold in the remaining ingredients until coated with the mayonnaise mixture. Chill for at least two hour or overnight. Serve on lettuce leaves or as a sandwich filling.

Serves 4 to 6

The final recipe not only contains those leftover eggs, but it also puts some of that Easter ham to good use.

Ham and Egg Salad
10 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 cups chopped ham
One fourth cup sweet pickle relish
One fourth cup sliced pimento stuffed olives 4 green onions washed and finely chopped, both green and white parts

One half cup mayonnaise

One fourth cup sour cream

2 teaspoons wine vinegar, either red or white

One half teaspoon salt

Lettuce leaves and grape tomatoes

In a medium bowl, combine eggs, ham, relish, olives, and green onions. Toss to combine

In a small bowl, whisk mayonnaise, sour cream, vinegar, and salt together until well combined. Fold into the ham and egg mixture. Check for seasoning, adding more salt if needed. Cover and chill at least two hours. When ready to serve, place on lettuce leaves and garnish with grape tomatoes.

Serves 4 to 6

Wishing everyone a happy Easter and safe egg eating.

Does My Cat Need Himalayan Salt?

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I'm thoroughly confused by all the "health advice" for pets that I read online. One site tells me my cats should eat only organic meats and chicken (and nothing else!), while a Facebook page tells me that my pets will do fine on a vegan diet. My granddaughter's Instagram feed says that cats need a slew of supplements to be healthy, including pink Himalayan salt, which is all the rage. How can I figure out what's really best for my cats? — Jim H., Manchester, New Hampshire

DEAR JIM: I feel your pain. The internet has given us access to all the information we're looking for — and all the information we weren't. Companies have sprung up left and right, peddling the latest supplement or dietary recommendation to keep our pets totally healthy, guaranteed.

Fad diets can sometimes do harm to pets because key nutrients may be left out. Feeding dogs and cats only meat, and nothing else, can be as bad as feeding them no meat. And while most supplements are safe, you have to read up on what they actually do and know what a safe dose is.

Your first and best resource is your pet's veterinarian, who has years of advanced education in animal care and stays abreast of the latest developments in pet health and wellness. He or she can tell you the best diet or supplements to give your cats, and which info on the internet to pay attention to and which to disregard.

Talk to the vet at your cats' next check-up, and you'll get a much clearer picture of the best way to keep them healthy and well fed. No trendy salts needed.

Send your questions or pet care tips to ask@pawscorner.com.

Duke is a 2 year old, male Labrador Retriever/Black-Mouth Cur mix, who was abandoned by his former owner. Their loss is someone's else's gain because this handsome boy is stellar in every way. His rescuer has told us that while he was with them, he was the perfect house guest. We have observed the same. Duke is trained in basic commands, including "sit," "stay," "come," "shake," and "down." He most definitely has gentlemanly manners. He enjoys meeting new pals in our doggie play yard, and is sweet with kiddos of all ages. He made many new friends at our weekly adoption event at Pet Smart. He appears to be house trained, as he has yet to have an accident. He walks great on leash, and looks forward to walks with our staff and volunteers. He does need to go into a household with no cats. Duke would be a loyal companion for a single person, couple, retirees, or active seniors. Duke would also thrive as a family pet, and could easily join a home with existing dogs. Please consider adding this loving dog to your family, and visit him at the Hancock County Animal Shelter, 7175 Texas Flat Rd, Kiln. For more information on Duke, call 466 4516, and visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Duke, and of the many other wonderful, adoptable animals looking for their forever homes.

REACHING BACK FOR THE PAST

BY GARY ANDREWS

GARY@GADEVOTIONALS.COM

For many of us that are getting on up in age, we sometimes sit around and reminisce about the good old days.

For me, on occasions, I will wonder if I had taken a different road in life where would I be today. Don't get me wrong, I am totally happy at where I am and where I have been. The Lord has truly blessed me and my family.

Remembering the days of my youth and being desirous of playing sports professionally, I often wonder what could have been had I applied myself more to what I really wanted to do at that time of my life? I remember having the ability to do anything I wanted to do, but it was the concentration and fortitude that I lacked. Being easily distracted and not wanting to put in the time and effort brought me to a different road in life. When I played baseball in junior college I had the mindset that ballplayers would be taken care of academically and was I ever wrong. I now realize that life is not easy and you have to work at what you get.

I have no regrets of what I have done or where I have gone but I will say the best thing I ever did was to accept and follow Jesus at an early age. What I was lacking in wisdom and strength in my earlier days, He led me and guided me to a good, Christian wife, four tremendous children, and a workplace full of excitement.

All of us need to remember what the gospel of Luke tells us in chapter 9, verse 62: "And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

This verse tells me I am where God wants me to be. I can sit and remember the days of my younger years and say, "What if?" all I want, but as a child of God, I am where He wants me to be.

Has the road always been rosy? No. Will there ever be a satisfied me in what I am doing or where I am going? Yes. Do I miss the good old days? Only when I am day-dreaming.

I believe it's okay to remember where we have been but we should never want to go back to those days. As a God-fearing, Bible believing, born again Christian, I know where my future is and my past is gone.

As a plowman and we look back, we cut a crooked furrow. All of us need to look straight ahead and follow the narrow road Jesus has paved for us.

Prayer: Lord, guide me in the direction you want me to go. Thank you for the memories of the past but I know my future is an eternal life with you. Amen.
